Acknowledgement

This report could not have been written without significant assistance from a range of people including:

- the offenders who agreed to participate;
- the data collection agencies that undertook the interviews;
- the state and territory correctional facilities who provided access to the offenders in their care;
- the Australian Institute of Criminology staff who undertook the project management;
- the Social Science Data Archives for the use of the National Drug Strategy Household Survey data;
- the support of policy officers within the Australian Government Attorney General's Department; and
- the generous funding of the Australian Government Attorney General's Department under the National Illicit Drug Strategy.

We gratefully acknowledge their contributions. However, we accept full responsibility for the interpretations and analyses presented herein.
