FOREWORD

This publication is based on data obtained from the first 200 issues of Australian Prison Trends, which has been published monthly by the Australian Institute of Criminology since May 1976. It includes an introduction by David Biles, Deputy Director of the Australian Institute of Criminology, which reviews the developments and improvements in the collection over this 17-year-period.

The data are presented in this publication as a time-series for each jurisdiction, with imprisonment rates (daily average number of prisoners per 100,000 Adult and Total population), Aboriginal rates (Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander prisoners in custody on the first of the month per 100,000 Adult and Total population) and remand rates (remandees in custody on the first of the month per 100,000 Adult and Total population) revised to reflect the latest estimated resident population data published by the Australian Bureau of Statistics. Consequently, these rates differ slightly from those published previously.

I express my sincere appreciation to David Biles and John Walker of the Institute, who pioneered and developed correctional statistics, to the numerous workers in Australian corrections departments who collected the data and to Diana Nelson who helped with the preparation of this report.

INTRODUCTION

Background

In November 1984, Australian Prison Trends, No. 1 to 100, May 1976 to September 1984, compiled by David Biles, assisted by Marjorie Johnson, was published. It seems appropriate to repeat the introduction presented in that publication and to include developments in the collection since that time.

The idea of producing a monthly collection of Australian prison statistics came from a seminar on penal measures conducted by the Australian Institute of Criminology in early 1976, at which reference was made to the differences in imprisonment rates (prisoners per 100,000 population) between Australian jurisdictions. Several prison administrators were participants in this seminar and they suggested that the figures that had been quoted were out of date. More importantly, they offered to supply more up-to-date statistics for their own jurisdictions. Following further informal discussions and some correspondence, a simple data collection sheet was designed and circulated. At that time, all that was collected were the daily average numbers of male and female prisoners in gazetted institutions for adults for the relevant month in each jurisdiction. These figures were reproduced and, after the first issue, converted into imprisonment rates in Australian Prison Trends which, for the first twelve months, was circulated only to the prison administrators themselves. Also, during the first year of publication an attempt was made to show changes over time in the size of the prison populations, and brief interpretative comments were included in most issues.

Development of Australian Prison Trends

After a year of publication, and with the agreement of the administrators, circulation was widened to include the Chief Justices in each State and Territory and a small number of research organisations. This monthly publication aroused considerable interest, especially the imprisonment rates, and during the second year the collection was extended to include basic information on the numbers of persons in custody and the number of unconvicted prisoners on remand for the first day of each month.

Initially, the remand statistics were published as crude numbers and as a percentage of the total prisoners for each jurisdiction, but some administrators pointed out that this gave a misleading picture, particularly for those jurisdictions with low imprisonment rates. Hence, from 1 November 1977 (issue No. 18), the remand figures were also presented as rates per 100,000 of general population.

With the cooperation of the Federal Attorney-General's Department, it became possible from October 1977 to list the Australian Capital Territory as a separate jurisdiction, even though the majority of ACT prisoners were (and still are) held in New South Wales prisons. From August 1978, a further refinement was made which allowed the (then not inconsiderable) numbers of Northern Territory prisoners who were serving sentences in other jurisdictions to be identified. Thus, as it evolved, the collection became as much of interest to judges and magistrates as it was to prison administrators. The imprisonment and remand rates were increasingly being seen as a direct reflection of sentencing and bail decision-making.

Prison occupancy survey

A prison occupancy survey was conducted for the first time in 1979, and published in a supplement to Australian Prison Trends. This showed that while the overall prison occupancy rate was 88.9 per cent, the rates (excluding the ACT) varied from 65.3 per cent in Tasmania to 103.4 per cent in Western Australia. Since 1986, this survey has been undertaken on an annual basis during the period January to March.

Federal prisoners

Small improvements were made to the collection in late 1978 by adding information about work release and attendance centre programs. In July 1980, with the cooperation of the Federal Attorney-General's Department, the numbers of Federal prisoners in each jurisdiction were collected. Initially these data were included quarterly. However, from July 1984 they were included on a monthly basis.

Sentenced prisoners received

From November 1981, information was added on the numbers of sentenced prisoners received each month in each jurisdiction and the number of fine defaulters in New South Wales. Theoretically, the number of sentenced prisoners received, together with the daily average number of prisoners, less remandees, can be used to calculate the average time served under sentence in each jurisdiction.

Because of concerns about the rising number of prison receptions the number of fine defaulters was sought from other jurisdictions. The February 1985 issue included data on the number of fine defaulters in South Australia and Tasmania with data for Western Australia and the Northern Territory added the next month. Victoria data was included in July 1985. By March 1986, all jurisdictions provided these data. The January 1987 issue included adult imprisonment rates (based on the number of all persons 17 years of age and over in the community). This rate was considered a more valid rate for comparison between Australian jurisdictions (17 being the general lower age limit entry into adult correctional institutions).

Periodic detention

The October 1988 issue included for the first time details of males and females in New South Wales in periodic detention on the first Sunday of the month. The January 1990 issue included the number of appellants included in New South Wales prisoners on remand.

Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander Prisoners

No further significant changes were made to Australian Prison Trends until January 1992 when New South Wales and Western Australia provided the numbers of Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander prisoners included in the number of total prisoners in custody on the first day of the month (first Sunday in the month for New South Wales). The adult Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander rate was also published. In July 1992, Victoria and South Australia provided this information and Queensland followed in August. By issue No. 200, January 1993, all jurisdictions in Australia reported the number of Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander prisoners in custody on the first of the month.

Other criminal justice data series

The data from Australian Prison Trends have been cited in many publications, including reports of the Australian Law Reform Commission and the Royal Commission into Aboriginal Deaths in Custody, and undoubtedly there is now a much wider public understanding of the numbers of people in prison in Australia than there was several years ago. Perhaps of even greater importance is the fact that Australian Prison Trends prompted the development of a number of parallel criminal justice data series. These include Juveniles Under Detention which commenced as a monthly publication in January 1977 under the direction of Dr Satyanshu Mukherjee but became a quarterly publication in January 1982 after negotiations with WELSTAT, the agency with whom the work was undertaken and which was responsible to the Welfare Ministers' Conference. The collection was temporarily suspended in 1986 with the collapse of WELSTAT; however, the Heads of the Office of Juvenile Justice in each jurisdiction now provide these data. Another series, National Probation and Parole Statistics, now renamed Australian Community Corrections Data, was initiated in 1978 under the direction of Mr Ivan Potas. This monthly series was developed to complement the Australian Prison Trends. The current status of this collection is being reviewed in line with the recent changes to the operation of community correctional programs throughout Australia. A quarterly publication, Prison Statistics for Asia and the Pacific, was published in May 1980. It contained basic data from fifteen countries in the region and is closely integrated with the work of the Annual Conference of Correctional Administrators for Asia and the Pacific. Finally, as a result of the first meeting of Prison Administrators in the South Pacific region, the Australian Institute of Criminology published South Pacific Prisoners 1992. This publication presents the number of prisoners, by gender, and imprisonment rates, for fourteen South Pacific nations. A second publication, proposed for June 1993 and annually thereafter, will be extended to include data for selected Asian countries. It will be retitled Prisoners in Asia and the Pacific.

National Prison Census

Possibly the most important consequence of the monthly publication of Australian Prison Trends has been the development of annual censuses of all Australian prisoners. Pressure for this development came from a number of directions. A conference of Chief Justices in 1980 asked if the Institute could do more to explain the differences in imprisonment rates by identifying the different types of prisoners in each jurisdiction, and a meeting of correctional administrators the following year recommended to the Conference of Correctional Services Ministers that a uniform national prison census be conducted in collaboration with the Institute. The first census was conducted on 30 June 1982 and has been conducted annually since that time. The results are widely recognised as invaluable for both planning and further research. A parallel census of persons undergoing community-based corrections has been conducted on a biennial basis since 30 June 1987.

The detailed negotiations and administration of these censuses is now undertaken by a body named the National Correctional Statistics Committee, which is responsible to the Conference of Correctional Services Ministers. This committee meets once or twice a year and comprises representatives of all corrections departments, the Australian Bureau of Statistics and the Institute. The committee also has an advisory role in relation to the Institute's monthly and quarterly data collections.

Presentation of report

For each jurisdiction data are presented over two sections for each month. The first section shows the daily average number of persons (to the nearest whole number) held in custody during the month shown with changes in the totals over the past month and over the past year, imprisonment rates (prisoners per 100,000 adult and total population) and number of sentenced prisoners received during the month. The second section shows the number of prisoners in custody on the first day of the month (the first Sunday in the month for New South Wales from April 1989), together with the number of prisoners who committed Federal offences against Commonwealth legislation, Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander prisoners and prisoners on remand (those prisoners either unconvicted, or convicted but awaiting sentence) included in the total, and Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander rates and remand rates (prisoners per 100,000 adult and total population). Supplementary data for each jurisdiction are included in tables at the end of each section and graphs of imprisonment rates and remand rates for each jurisdiction are given in Appendix 1. From October 1977 Australian Capital Territory prisoners serving sentences in New South Wales have been included in the number of prisoners in the Australian Capital Territory.

It is hoped that this publication will be a useful reference for all people interested in the use of imprisonment statistics in Australia over the past two decades.

EXPLANATORY NOTES

Estimates of missing data

Errors detected since the publication of monthly Australian Prison Trends have been amended and the latest data are published in this issue. Estimates have been made to data that was missing when originally published. The relevant month has been footnoted and the estimates are shown in italics.

Source of population data

Adult (all persons 17 years of age and over) and total population imprisonment rates, remand and Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander prisoners in custody rates shown in this volume are based on population data derived from Australian Bureau of Statistics, Estimated resident population, by sex and age: States and Territories of Australia, June 1971 to June 1981, June 1981 to June 1987 and June 1987 to June 1992 (Catalogue No.3201.0) (see Appendices 3 and 4), and 1991 Census Matrix Software, (Catalogue No. 2714.0) (see Appendix 5).

A list of publication dates is given in Appendix 2.

* Prisoners in periodic detention centres on the first day of the month are given in Table 1b(i). Periodic detainees are not included in the count of daily average numbers of prisoners, but commencements are included in sentenced receptions.

'Adult' refers to all persons 17 years of age and over.

[^] Remandees awaiting appeal included in number of prisoners on remand are given in Table 1b(ii). Appellant numbers are not included in reduced italicised figures.

- Includes ACT prisoners. From October 1977 ACT prisoners in custody in NSW prisons are shown separately.

* Includes 1 Federal prisoner transferred from the Northern Territory.

 From April 1989 the first Sunday in the month.

* Prisoners on work release (or seeking work) included in daily average numbers of prisoners are given in Table 4a(i).

'Adult' refers to all persons 17 years of age and over.

^ Numbers of Fine Defaulters only.

~ From October 1987 to September 1989 persons transferred from remand status have been omitted from sentenced receptions.

~ Figures in italics are not available and have been estimated by interpolation.
