INTRODUCTION

The Australian Institute of Criminology has established a national clearinghouse of criminological information to act as a central agency for the collection, storage, exchange and dissemination of bibliographical data on Australian and Australian-related criminological material.

This information is stored on computer and forms the data base of CINCH (Computerised Information from National Criminological Holdings), the Institute's computerised bibliographic service which provides rapid and comprehensive retrospective searches.

The Information Bulletin of Australian Criminology is published quarterly and is an integral part of this system, publishing in its 'Recent Publications' and 'Current and Recently Completed Research' sections all the new material which continuously updates the CINCH data base. It also contains information regarding past and forthcoming seminars in Australia, bibliographical activities of the J.V. Barry Memorial Library and generally aims to encourage a greater interchange of information between all persons interested in Australian criminology.

The success of the Information Bulletin depends to a large degree on material contributed to it by its readers, and persons who would like a statement of their research to appear or wish to publicise conferences or seminars are invited to complete the appropriate forms supplied with each issue and return them to the address below.

Readers will appreciate that the information contained in the Information Bulletin can only be as accurate and reliable as its source.

The Australian Institute of Criminology hopes that the services provided by CINCH and this Information Bulletin prove valuable to those interested in criminology and looks forward to the continued interest and assistance of its readers.

CURRENT RESEARCH

696 LAW ENFORCEMENT – GREAT BRITAIN – HISTORY

- Topic: Crime and Law-enforcement in England c.1780-1850
- Auspices: History Department, University of Melbourne
- Researcher: Dr D. Philips
- Address: Department of History, University of Melbourne, Parkville, Victoria. 3052.
- Duration of research: At least one year.
- Outline: An examination of a number of important themes in this period.
- (1) The institutionalisation of the process of law enforcement from an essentially informal, paternalistic system to an institutionalised police force system; the connection of this with the changes in scale and the problems associated with the industrialisation and urbanisation which accompanied the first Industrial Revolution.
- (2) Popular attitudes towards, and ideas about, the law and its agents. The way in which the English common law functioned ideologically and in the image which it projected and occupied in the minds of Englishmen. The roots of the English political and social stability and their relative willingness to obey the dictates of the law without being subjected to any fierce kind of coercion.

699 CRIME – GREAT BRITAIN – HISTORY

- Topic: Crime and Authority in Victorian England: The Black Country 1835-1860 (title of book)
- Researcher: Dr D. Philips
- Address: Department of History, University of Melbourne, Parkville. Vic. 3052
- Outline: The book examines the validity of the contemporary fears that the Industrial Revolution in England had led to a breakdown in law and order and an upsurge in crime; it does this by examining one industrial area, the Black Country, in the West Midlands, for the period 1835-60. It examines carefully the question of what sources can be used for the historical study of crime and law enforcement and what conclusions can be drawn from them. It emphasises the need to study this area as a process of interaction between those who broke the law and those who made and enforced it. It examines the change from the old parish constables to the new police forces, and the operating methods and efficiency of these institutions. It looks closely at the system of prosecution, stressing the importance of the fact that it relied on prosecution by private individual. General trends in prosecuted crime are analysed (based on an analysis of over 20,000 indictable offences which came to trial for the area in this period), and a detailed study made property offences and offences involving violence.
- Published by: Croom Helm (London, October 1977).

- Available from: Office of the Chief Commissioner of Police, 380 William Street, Melbourne. Vic. 3000. Price: $A 8.50
